We're committed to working alongside local communities to honor their histories in place and to close persistent and pernicious racial and economic gaps. To accomplish this, LISC boldly invests in the people, places, and projects that make Twin Cities communities great places to live, work and prosper --- places that are robust, vibrant, and strong; where housing is affordable, where art and culture re-energize neighborhoods; and where people have real opportunities to connect with good jobs and strong careers that help them take control of their futures.
