LISC’s Response to COVID-19 in Massachusetts

LISC is one of the country’s largest community development support organizations, but we have deep local roots, having invested more than $300 million in Massachusetts communities over 35 years.

While everyone is affected by COVID-19, LISC is unapologetically focused on mitigating the effects of the crisis on underserved people and organizations, who have been hit hardest by the pandemic and its economic effects. LISC is driving four critical solutions for small businesses hurt by COVID-19.

- Emergency Grants
- Technical Assistance
- Flexible Financing for Recovery
- Economic Stability and Housing Affordability

We prioritize minority- and women-owned and led enterprises and enterprises serving low-income communities, as well as the organizations and networks that support them.

Doris Montoya of Doris’s Peruvian Pastries in Marlborough received a LISC emergency grant.
Beyond Six Feet Apart Accelerator

Overvew

We launched the program to assist minority-owned small businesses to get back to work safely and strategically in the wake of COVID-19. More specifically, we set out to do three things.

- Provide a structured, digitally-enabled planning process, supported by consulting teams, to respond safely and strategically to COVID-19.
- Better understand the challenges small businesses and owners of color are facing at this time.
- Develop impactful, responsive tools that can be deployed at scale throughout the small business support ecosystem.

Our Goals for the Beyond Six Feet Apart Accelerator

The dining room of Mei Mei in Boston was closed by COVID. Social distancing presents a particular challenge for their small dining space. Mei Mei advanced its reopening strategy through the Beyond Six Feet Apart Accelerator.
A Powerful Partnership with the IXL Center

LISC partnered with the IXL Center to create an innovative, digitally-enabled program with an audit and planning tool that can be scaled for use by other providers. IXL is a global innovation company with unique roots in business consulting and education. MBA students trained and supervised by IXL provide consulting services to clients to create a plan for a safe, strategic reopening.

“This program challenged us to rethink how to make our business safe for our customers.”

Sessions were open to the public, with recordings, resources and takeaways shared broadly on LISC’s website and with members of the business support network. Other TA providers network have been invited to audit the program to provide feedback and leverage learning.

Insight 1: Doing Business Safely Requires a Comprehensive Safety Plan

Mapping the journeys of all of your business’s stakeholders to identify and eliminate any unsafe interactions is complex, but important. Be sure to consider the impact of employee or customer fear on your operations and customer demand.

Stop and Compare grocery store owner Alberto Calvo found that journey map process made him think about aspects of safety or health that his team had not considered, even though they had remained open through COVID. His consulting team identified innovative solutions he had not considered, like a self-sanitizing cart handle.
The pandemic created a dynamic shift in consumer spending, and a shrinkage in global demand. Each business will need to consider a strategic pivot to adapt to this changed context.

Self-fulfillment Needs
1. Leisure
2. Community
3. Travel
4. Hobbies
5. Entertainment
6. Education
7. Financial Security
8. Safety
9. Food
10. Health

Basic Needs
- Health
- Food
- Safety
- Education
- Financial Security

As customers spending is restricted to basic needs there is a Shrinkage in global demand.
Insight 3: Creative Strategies Can Sustain or Grow Demand

By defining new ways to provide and market your goods and services, or adapting new products, you can open a new set of opportunities for your business.

Target Market
- Target a different market segment
- Attract local market interest
- Re-think value proposition

Demand
- Leverage new channels
- Go digital & online
- Customize the offerings

Capacity
- Repurposing internal talent instead of outsourcing (i.e. delivery apps costly)
- Training for new offerings

Business Model
- Bulk ordering or B2B opportunities
- Decentralizing distribution (pick-ups & deliveries)
- Efficient 2-in-1 services (order food & grocery)

Marvelous Barber Lounge is targeting a new market segment with a new, safe location, an aggressive online presence & livestreamed events.

Mei Mei launched videos to market virtual dumpling classes & DIY dumpling making kits, adapted its menu and offered bags of groceries with takeout.

Wally’s Jazz Café has a powerful brand but a tiny space. They are pivoting from live shows to livestreaming, merch sales and outsourcing music to other venues.

Expresso Pizza has robust takeout demand but is keeping its dining room closed. It’s building new demand by offering frozen, half-baked pizzas online.
Insight 4: Understand Customer Segments to Develop Strategy

Understanding how and why demand is changing for each of your customer segments will help you understand how to refine your value proposition and harness shifts in demand.

At-Risk Clients
Intriguing Hair owner Nikia Londy responded to closure by growing online sales of wigs and extensions. Her customer base includes health-compromised clients, so she doubled down on safety to protect this customer segment before inviting them back into her salon.

Tuesday Shoppers
Family-owned Stop & Compare supermarkets found that many customers were shopping on Tuesdays, when they receive SNAP benefits, which crowds the store and compromises safety. As a result, they are developing an online ordering and pickup option for this customer segment.
Insight 5: Digital Solutions and Digital Capacity are Critical

All businesses need to take advantage of safe, low-cost, digital solutions and invest in building their digital capacity. Digital tools provide ways to avoid unnecessary contact, reach customers in a new normal, and capture demand in a changing context. These are just a few examples.
Insight 6: Every Business Needs a Digital Communications Strategy

Business need to communicate to customers that the business is safe and have an online presence and brand building. You will also have to assess the content generation that will be needed to distribute across your communications channels.

Communication and PR

Social Media

Website

Online Videos

Mei Mei is leaning into its award winning dumplings with online sales of dumpling making kits and cooking courses.
Insight 7:  Build New Partnerships to Adapt Quickly

Businesses who leverage new partnerships will adapt more quickly and capture the widest market in the shortest time.

- Capability Building
  - Online tools
  - Team training
  - Partner with venues

- Growing through network
  - Partner with associations,
    - local businesses,
    - institutions

- Community Collaboration
  - Partner to bring online content,
    - speakers, trainers to their summer trainings
Insight 8: Consider Costs, Risks, Investment and Return

Businesses need to analyze the opportunities they have to invest in their implementation plan, anticipate the return they will see on those investments and the risk of NOT making the investment.

Espresso Pizza owner Frank Carvalho planned to invest in a POS system for cashless payments, website redesign, and tools and supplies to launch online sales of frozen pizzas. He and his team are doing a thorough analysis of the return on this investment to ensure it will pay off and to decide when to launch.

Insight 9: Sector-Specific Groups Lead to Sector-Specific Insights

Businesses and consulting teams meet weekly in a sector-specific workout group, where they share their work and brainstorm with each other. The result is peer support, network building and sector-specific insights.

Shown are B6FA clients Intriguing Hair in Hyde Park, the Loop Lab in Cambridge, Tanam in Somerville and Marvelous Barber Lounge in Brockton.

Rapid Response Program

History
Response to the Crisis

- Prior to Covid-19 Start Small’s Legal Program was testing remote clinics connecting attorneys to clients across the country.
- In response to the crisis we scaled these efforts up for our clients. By the end of March we were fully serving our existing client base remotely.
- The need was growing as more and more small businesses became ‘under-resourced’ every day.
- We developed a ‘light’ or “Rapid Response” version of our core-service model and expanded eligibility to the full states of NY and CA.
- Our primary firm partners, including Paul Weiss, stepped up to join our Collaborative take matters in bulk, 5-30 per week, and distribute internally.
- With a centralized training hub we were able to offer regular updates on the law to ensure every team across firms had access to the most recent information.
Next Steps for the Collaborative and Paul Weiss

- The initial shutdown disproportionately affected black, women, people of color, immigrant and low income business owners.
- Now we are moving into the second stage of the small business economic crisis, working on stabilization and hopefully recovery.
- We are:
  - Adding new consultations and requisite trainings for attorney volunteers. Including e.g.
    - Raising capital, grants, and loans with better than market terms available specifically to underserved groups.
    - Renegotiating/restructuring debt with support from attorneys.
    - Commercial lease renegotiation or exit.
  - With Paul Weiss, Cleary Gottlieb, DLA Piper, and Simpson Thacher we are building an interactive dynamic database of funding sources for underserved entrepreneurs and trainings to ensure law firm and corporate volunteers can continue to assist these vulnerable and essential small businesses to keep the doors open and maybe even find new opportunities to come out of this stronger.
